Class

Absence from and late to class

1. If your total class attendance until the end of the month before graduation is less than 90%, you will not receive graduate certificate from Japanese Language Course. Attendance is counted by each class period. Thus, a day absence equal to 5 class periods absence. Even if you are an excellent student with great grades, BIL will not write recommendation letter for student with attendance rate lower than 90%. In addition, the inspection process of the Immigration Bureau of Japan has become stricter, and even if you have been accepted to business school, college, or university, it is possible that the Bureau will not renew your student visa. Thus, you must constantly strive for an attendance rate of higher than 90%.
2. In Japan, trains are chronically late in the mornings. We do not accept delay certificates that you can receive at stations so you should leave home early enough with the chronic train delays in mind.
If you are away from classroom for a long time during a class period even due going to toilet, you will be considered absent from the class period.
3. If you miss class due to any reason, such as an illness, accident, or any other personal reason, you will be considered to have been absent.
If you are going to be absent, you must contact your class teacher; however, just because you contact the teacher, it does not mean that you will not be considered absent. However, when you contract designated infectious disease like influenza, you are prohibited of going to school. In such case, you should file a report called “Koketsu (公欠)” to school so your absence will not be counted as absence. For the entrance exam to higher education, you can also make the report. For Koketsu, you need to show us some kind of certificate as a proof of your absence.
4. At Kyomu, we will be able to tell you what your current attendance record is. We will not answer inquiries such as “how many more days can I be absent?”

Class placement for Japanese Language Course

After that, there will be a school-wide examination, and classes will be divided up according to the results. However sometimes student might change class depending on student's performance during early stage of class.
In addition, following that, classes will be divided up as necessary and according to test results and class performance.
At times entire classes will change, and at other times, just several students will be moved to a different class.

This is done so for your benefit as not understanding fully what is being taught during a class will make it difficult for you to catch up.
